Content Topics	Founding documents: Declaration of Independence and Constitution, incl. Bill of Rights; 7 Principles of Government; Founding Fathers; American exceptionalism & Tocqueville's 5 values	Westward expansion; Native American policies; expansionist policies;	Progressive movement and many of its reforms.	Spanish-American War in 1898 and expansion to island nations in the Pacific and Caribbean; 1914 WWI breaks out in Europe; US entry 1917	Flourishing of the free market and innovation, freedom in culture, art, and social dynamics and a fracture in the American prism of wealth, privilege, and mass culture.	Impact of the Great Depression on the people and the government response to the economic crisis.	Rise of dictators in Europe; Outbreak of WWII and US entry; transformation of US society into war mode	United States and the Soviet Union begin the Cold War; investment in nuclear weapons; U.S. enter the Korean War; fear of communism escalates; U.S. experiences economic boom fueled by consumer spending spurred by the mass media, especially television; many still find themselves mired in poverty and stifled by discrimination.	African American activists and other groups begin to win legal and social changes through the courts; voting rights, equality of opportunity in education, housing and employment won; social programs expanded in Great Society.	As a response to the spread of communism in Southeast Asia, the US increased its involvement in Vietnam and this led to a decade long war. Protests at home and a backlash against the conformity of the 1950s led to a growing counterculture.	The rise of conservatism comes as a backlash to the counterculture and Nixon is elected president. Under Nixon the Vietnam War comes to an end and environmental issues are tackled, but he leaves office under a cloud of scandal.	Ronald Reagan is swept into office in 1980 under a promise to to reduce size of government, build the military, and stand up to communism. His economic policies and military strength leads to the Soviet Union dissolution under Gorbachev.	The economic growth and technological innovations experienced in the Reagan Era were surpassed by the those under Bill Clinton's presidency. The economy becomes more global and less segmented. New waves of immigration changed the face of America during this time as well.	The new century begins with a controversial election and a terrorist attack like none other on American soil. The US sends troops into Iraq and Afghanistan to fight the War on Terror. In 2008, amid a financial meltdown, Barack Obama is elected president and re-elected in 2012.
